THE CUNARD MAIL SUBSIDY.

Authentic information has been received that the British Government has notified the Cunard Steamship Company of the termination of their mail subsidy when the present contract expires next year. The policy of discontinuing special subsidy grants for the trans-Atlantic mail service, under which system monopolies were granted to certain favored steamship lines, and of establishing a calfantstaming orean service on the basic a self-sustaining ocean service on the basis of postage earnings, inaugurated by the Post Office Department of this country, and so successfully defended and maintained by or General DENNISON in his admin istration of the Department, is thus concurre in by the British Government. This intelligence will be gratifying to correspondents on both sides of the Atlantic, inasmuch as the subsidy paid by the British Government to the Canard line of packets has been the chief obstacle to the establishment of reduced rates of postage between this country and the United Kingdom, and to countries beyond using the British means of conveyance. It will also strengthen the Postmaster General in his opposition to the various speculative, lobbying schemes for mail subsidies which are being pressed upon the consideration of Congress by parties de-siring monopoly grants to establish steam-Europe. The public may now look forward to an early reduction of inter-national postages to European States, advocated in the last annual report of the Post-

LET THE PEOPLE DECIDE.

That august tribunal, which in the nature of the institutions under which we live can alone give strength and validity to any governmental measure, is soon to pass upon the most important subject that ever engaged the attention of the American people. Tries in every vicissitude which befall nations; vis ited by every controversy which political bodies can experience, the people of this country have invariably rendered that verdict most honorable to the Republic, and most certain to vitalize its ideas and enhance its welfare. Three great periods of agitation through which we have successfully passed, attests the predominance of the national sen-timent and our abhorrence to monopoly or the undue influence of power by any class or section or institution of the land. In the earlier political stages the people rallied under the standard of JEFFERSON because he interpreted government in a liberal and reamid the fierce agitations of that period that the people were taught those main democratic ideas and that antagonism to usurpa-tion which is fresh and real in their hearts at this moment.

When Jackson assumed the mantle which fell from the shoulders of JEFFRESON, and made war upon a vast moneyed corporation which had commenced to wield an alarming influence in public affairs, and which threaened to undermine the institutions of the country by the subornation of the press and the control of elections, he was beset with the whole enginery of the money power of the country; the Senate of the United States became the theatre of bitter animosity against him; the gigantic forensic ability WEBSTER, the finming periods and florid clo quence of CLAY, the keen argument and subtle logic of CALBOUN combined to ruin him before the community; the press hurled at him its thunders; and panic joined the formidable organization to belittle him in public estimation and wean from him public confidence. The old here never faltered; with an unfaltering trust in the intelligen of his countrymen he crushed the monster bank and went to the country; and as the people gathered around the standard of Jarso they rallied again around the standard of JACKSON. When the institution of human slavery, passing from the limits of the State, aspired to national ascendancy; when it violated nises and opened the virgi domain of the republic to its hateful presence; when it sought to involve thirty millions of Americans with its innate evil and its ad vancing power, the people revolted. The took from the prairies of Illinois a plain and simple man, with the faith of JEFFERSON in ocratic ideas, with the firmness of Jacksow in resistance to the bloated tyranny and arrogance of oppression, and lifted him to the ce, that human alayery might be confined to its constitutional boundaries and in order to prevent its desecration of the untrodden empire of the West, and that it might not attain to political supremacy in inight not attain to position nation. In what this free and Christian nation. In what manner this great people sustained their chief; how they responded to his call to arms; how they maintained him against the mad coalition of political aspirants and open mouthed defamers; how they stood by his efforts to restore the unity of country; they vindicated the life and bemoaned the death of ABRAHAN LANCOLN, is both the ican history. It was the light of these glowing facts that inspired Andrew Johnson, upon whem Heaven has imposed burdens weightier than those which rested upon Jarranson and Jackson, and equally momentous with those which saddened the years of Liscoin, to look s they looked, and to trust as they treated the people of America. And wigely has he confidence in them. The foundation of this Government, its rescue from civil peril by toils of war, its re-establishment on peace footing, is their especial concern. They and their children are to live under it long after Presidents' retire, and when Senat and Congressmen have passed away from man memory; therefore their interest is as vital as the happiness and welfare of nations life, and not the interest of an evanescent and unimportant political existence.

The Thirty-ninth Congress has decided to carry to the country a policy which in its spirit and its affect is diametrically in opposition to that of Tox Passinger. Had it been in our power we would have had Congress and Tox Passinger in harmony. But Congress would not have it so. It appears to have studiously labored to prejudice the public against him; it has employed the most nischistons agencies to misrepresent and lenounce him; and it has now made up an principle; for, strange to say, every principal feature in what is known as the presidential policy has been adopted by Congress; but the issue is in the method of applying those missiples and the time and manner in principles, and the time and manner in which they are to be demonstrated. Both THE PRESIDENT and Congress deny the right of congressional interference with the suffrage importance of restoration. But while THE PRESIDENT relies on amity, intercourse, and dentity of commercial and industrial relations, Congress relies on a renewal of sec tional ascendency; a continuation old animosities, and a revival of mer feuds and ferocities. THE PRESIDES would cease war everywhere, and return to the Constitution. Congress would continu the authority which war involved, and would rule as conquerors. The Parsidest appeals to a common faith, a common origin, and a common destiny; Congress, to a sectional partisanship; to the passions of sectional hatred; and to a destiny which involves the degradation and inferiority of one portion of the country by the retention of power in anadvancement of the country; Congress, the success and re-election of a party. On these issues the people are soon to decide. We are glad they are distinct and unmistakable; for unless the people have forgotten their Chris-tian impulses, and lost their humane instincts, and forsaken their republican education, they will stand unswervingly by him ciples, a slaveless nation, and a united

DEFEATED REBELS SUPPORT-ING MR. JOHNSON.

The Boston Transcript, the home organ of CHARLES SUNKER, contains, in its issue of the 10thinst., the following venomous paragraph, evidently inspired by a reptile more treachrous than the copperhead:

erous than the copperhead:

"We have only to look at the character of the men who rally to Mr. Johnson's support, to know in what direction he will be forced to go. The men are generally defeated robels and these saders and cletters in the North; and it is unreasonable to suppose that the President can rely on their assistsince without carching the conteguous of their perioripies, and obeying the pressure of their passions and aims. The hand may be Andrew Johnson's, but the mind that directs the hand will be that of Alexander Stephens."

The above is a high compliment to Wit-LIAN H. SEWARD, HUGH McCULLOCH, EDWIN M. STANTON, GIDEON WELLER, JAMES HABLAN, WILLIAM DENNISON, and JAMES SPEED, wh constitute the Cabinet formed by ABBAHAN Lincoln; it is a high compliment to Ulyssus S. Grant and David G. Farragut, our great military and naval chieftians; to SHERMAN and Sheatpan, and the whole host of military and naval heroes who fought to preserve th Union and who now support ANDREW JOHNson in his restoration policy. Are the men named above "defeated rebels?" Let the UMMER organ answer.

A PLATFORM THAT WE CAN ALL

Loyal representation in Congress upon the basis of the actual voting population is as strong and safe a platform for reconstrucion as our friends in Congress could stand upon. The sentiment of the country at large would support them thereon, and the whole Republican party be a unit in its doption.

The above is from the Chicago Journal. The same paper, on the same day, adds:

We hope most sincerely that the result of the discussion now in progress in Congress will be the adoption of a wise, practicable, and successful plan of national reconstruc-tion. But thus far the work has the appea-nace of having been done by apprentices. Why don't the master-workmen in the craft of statementhic arter and parform this del-Why don't the master-workmen in the craft of statesmanship order and perform this delicate job? Why don't the Fessendens, Shermans, Walsons, Washburnes, Morrills, Bankses, and those other unflinching but discreet men who helped Lincoln and Grant to smash the head of the serpent of rebellion, take the work out of the hands of Thad. Stevens & Co., and finish it up as it ought to be?

Will the remonstrants satisfy Congress that by educing the tax on cotton poor people will be able hase a yard of cotton cloth one half cent chesper? The reduction of the tax on cotton will not change the price of calloos at Alexandra Struman's counter in New York. Poor women rould have to pay none the less. Don't reduce tax-tion to monopolles upon such foolish pleas.

As I feel a more anxious curiosity than ever in respect to mundams affairs. I shall with pleasure embrace the new opportunity afforded me to communicate with your planet.

I have been much interested in your late rebellion, and have, during the lest five years, bad my syn fixed upon Washington more than any other point on the surface of your globe. I had known that when cotton legan to he agrant staple, when a Yankou invented the culton gin, by means of which it became possible to supply makind with their of this material, Jone & Caanoux, of South Carollon, conceived the idea of setting up a south-Carolina, conneived the idea of setting up a sout in order to accomplish that end. This led to rebel lion as soon as the Calboun pullticians had indoo trinated a sufficient number of the southern people with second onism. Slavery was an object with the of course, but they wanted slavery only becau they deemed it the most profitable labor in the c ton fields, while at the same time it furnished ser

All this I could see from this distance.
And so the rebettion came upon you.
The rebettion, the secession was conquered, but the what carnage! How much blood was shed!
Never before have I been so glad that one-half your orb is hid from me one-half of each twentyflour hours. That shedding of blood was dreadful!
Bat I must conclude that bloodshed with you is different from what it is with us. Our blood, or the faild circulating in our bodies, is a white inhor, and when it is shed with fatal effect by any one in anger or with ma ice, such drop aprings from the ground after a short time in the form of a fend, whose uitssion it is to torment the slayer until expiation ! we against homicide; for when one has killed an-her, the blood springs from the ground in a flock oner, the brook springs from the ground in a nor of avengers, from whost there is no escape, except in the fastnesses of our highest mountains, where the fugitive may be looked up in elemal frost. Wars are impossible here; for the blood of the stain would produce awarms of demons that should annihilate each the other's opposing forces, and then missic each the other's opposing levels, and then sink into nothingness.

But you manage these things differently on earth; and yet I cannot look with complacency upon kill-ing, even where it is done with earthly impunity. We could not have civil wars, and I shudder at the thought of that one which you have just passed

When your armies had conquered the receiving it looked for peace. Fighting ceased, and I saw peace proclaimed. Then I supposed your Union was restored; but when your Congress assembled they said "not so," and after they have been in session six months, I see your flag floating with eleven of its stars in an eclipse. One of my boys, who is studying arithmetic, said the other day "it must be glorious to attend the session of the American us to attend the session of the America Congress now." I saked his reasons, when he re-plied that as the representatives of twenty-five States were legislating for thirty-six States, he supposed the members had 11-36 more ability than members of former Congresses. I found it difficult to convince him that this notion was a bit of lu-vary on his part; but the fact that the Congress had not been able to reconstruct the Union showed him that he was mistaken. He went away pout-ing, and declaring that they ought to have 11-36 more taient and patriotism than their predecessors, instead of having less.

One of my sons is, I am corry to say, a sympthiner with the secsationists, and yesfarday he sale ancily, that these Northern politicians believed their hearts that one Southerner was equal to five Yankees notwithstanding the rebels were besten in the field. If not, he saked, why are they afraid to lot them back into the Union? I reprimanded him sharply, and he went off mutering something to the effect that "there were to any musicians of the Nune subsol in Congress— ddling while their Union was going to pot." But while I teach the children of the moon that

The children of the moon regard the plea that, if restoration should be effected, the rabels would gain the ascendancy as preposterous as it is cowardly. Your disruption committee, by keeping out loyal representatives, are destroying the prospects of a Union party in the South. The people there would have condemned to political ablition the leaders who led them into rebellion and ruin if unionists had been encouraged; but now, when they are all shut out together, they will make common cause, and, unless they are to be kept eternally under guard, a reaction must come that
